The Christmas turkey will bring The Christmas turkey will bring a good price, and the demand is usually great at that time. There willbe higher prices and more weight if the turkeys are given all the grain they can eat twice a day. Sell only the young ones, if the old ones are not over two years old, as the old turkeys are better for breeding purposes next year, they producing stronger and better young ones than can be obtained from pullets.

Because a prediction partity of liquid means the control of the price o

Because a small quantity of liquid ma ture proves beneficial to pot plants in the window garden, the temptation to give larger applications should be resisted. While a tender house plant is invigorated by a weak solution at times, there is danger of injury when times, there is danger or injury when the amount given the plants is copious. Clear water should be used mostly, three times a week being often enough for fertilizer solutions, even when the solutions are very weak.

The best cheese is made from the whole milk. When a brand of cheese is whole milk. When't brand of cheese is put on the market that is known to be of the best quality it always sells readily. When the market is overstocked with cheese it is of the poorest kinds. The tendency to make a portion of the cream into butter and giving the cheese only a portion of the whole milk destroys the sale of the cheese by compelling it to take its place with inferior goods.

An inquirer wishes to know the breeds of fowls that are considered the best winter layers. The Asiatics— Brahmas, Cochins and Leghorns—are entitled to that distinction, being hardy, well feathered and adapted to confin ment, though the Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes are also excellent winter layers. Much depends, however, on warm quarters and the mode of man-

Digging potatoes is sometimes a tedious operation, but the potato diggers are now ahead of the wheat harvesters. A main journal reports that a farmer in that section dug six acres of potatoes in fifty minutes by a single machine dig-ger. Such rapid work should induce farmers to grow more potatoes, and it should not only add to his profits, but cheapen the cost to consumers.

Small fruits are as easily grown as farm crops. More work is required in harvesting and shipping, but less land is necessary in order to secure a large return compared with other crops. When it is considered that but a short period of the year is devoted to an orperiod of the year is devoted to an orchard or to small fruits it is doubtful if the labor bestowed is greater than for wheat, corn or vegetables.

Work the manure over now, and put Work the manure over now, and put the coarser portions in the center. It may give you extra work, but it will quicken the growth of plants next spring by being in a more perfect con-dition as plant food. There is an art in so managing the manure as to have it in the finest and best condition and without being any nortion of it at any without losing any portion of it at any season of the year.

It has been stated, and truthfully, that a farm only five miles from market, but with a muddy road for the farmer's horses to use, will not prove as renumerative as a farm of equal advantages, but ten miles off and near a good turnpike.

Telegraph Pudding.—Put in a large bowl one pint of molasses, one pint of buttermilk, one quart flour; beat in one teacup butter, one teaspoon soda, one-half teacup sugar, and lastly one cup of raisins, currants, dried cherries, or any dried fruit desired. Make a very stift batter, have bag greased and floured, drop in boiling water and boil steadily for two hours. This, when sliced, should be almost as dry as cake. It may come to the table ablaze; if so desired sprinkle a small handful of sugar over it and pour on six tablespoonsful of rum. Apply match and serve burning. Molded Salad-Mold salad is chicken salad in any preferred style or season-ing, molded into shapes between layers of jelly. This is what is known as aspic jelly. It is made of ordinary gelatine, and according to the usual directions, except that it is flavored with pepper, salt, white vinegar, and a pinch of cayenne and celery salt, instead of sugar, wine and spice. It is also quite an im-provement to boil previously in the water used for this jelly an onion, a car-rot and a bay leaf—but this is not neressary. This jelly must be clearified with eggs if wished particularly trans-parent. When it is made fill the bottom of a mold about half an inch deep and allow it to sit; then place on it a thin layer of salad and pour over it a half inch deep of jelly and leave to set. When turned out this may be garnished to suit the taste, and makes a very pretty dish.

Cocoanut Cake.—One cup sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup sweet milk, one and one-half cups flour, one tea-spoonful baking powder, whites of four eggs. Bake in three layers. Beat the white of two eggs stiff, thicken with eight tablespoonfuls powdered sugar, spread between the layers and over the top, sprinkling plentifully with cocoa-

A WOMAN IN A HOTEL.

Not Greatly Unlike the "Bull in a China Shop," Vansas City Star.

She rings the bell three times to a man's once. She apologizes so profusely to the bell boy that he comes down stairs with not an idea of what he is to do. She writes about eight letters a day, and each envelope seems to contain at least three sheets of the hotel's paner. She sends the missives down one by one to be posted and "Ask the office, please, to put a stamp on for me," she says each time. She never makes out a wash list, but she "knows" just what she had, and one pair hasn't been returned. She refuses indignantly to confide more to "the office" when he inquires, but she is sure just how many were in, and "these have blue ribbons." She puts all sorts of things in the safe, but she is perfectly sure she put several things there that she didn't put there, and, of course, this makes it awkward for "the office," because he can't prove anything, and she always "knows."

She is always thunderstruck at the amounts paid for her bills, and she "knows" there is a mistake. The bills have to be produced, and even then she does not remember receiving the goods at all or buying them, or anything. If she remembers afterward she comes down and explains to "the office," and apologizes, which makes him feel better. Sometimes she gets conscious-smitten

Sometimes she gets conscious-smitten about ringing the bells so much, and then she runs out, rings up the elevator and gives the elevator boy orders. Yet people wonder at so many elevator disasters. An elevator boy's life has its ups and downs anyhow, but when the woman comes to giving him messages he loses his grip altogether, and the elevator may take advantage of him. vator may take advantage of him.

"I expect a gentleman to call about 9," she remarks. "Please say I am out. If any one else comes send them right

When a card awaits her she takes "the office" right into her confidence.
The woman in a hotel expects the chambermaid to "see to" this, that and the other things, sewing on a button, taking a stitch, hanging up her dresses and helping her to put them on. The chambernaid is only a poor human being, who has a lot of work to do and being, who has a lot of work to do and the housekeeper to keep an eye on her. But what of that? The lady asks her just the same, "Iron these out for me, Mary, there's a good girl," or to "face up my dress, there's a dear," or to "put me in a few extra towels, do," or "get me a cake of soap—I'm leaving this afternoon." She tacks photographs up on the wall—that she will do—and she cries right in the office helps overy one. cries right in the office before every one on the wait—that she will do—and she cries right in the office before every one when she is charged extra for damage to walls. Then cards and caliers! Oh, heaven, give "the office" patience.

"Oh, dear. I'm so sorry!" she exclaims. "When did they call? Oh, yes, the time is on the card. If you had only told them to wait. I know I didn't leave instructions, but then, you see, I had no idea they would call. I didn't even know they were in town. Was the baby along, too? Oh, dear, I've never seen the baby. SHE LEFT THE BABY BEHIND A Little Girl's Bargain, Which Turns Out a Household Blessing.

Journal of Emily Share. A little girl near us was one day playing before the house, when a woman appeared and begged a few pence. She had a baby in her arms. And the child was so delighted with the little thing that she asked the woman if she would sell it to her.

"What will you give for it, miss?"

was the counter question.

"Half a crown."

"Very well," said the woman; "let's see the money."

It was produced and the sale made.

It was produced and the sale made. The little girl took the baby, carried it upstairs and laid it on her bed, and, after she had fondled it "enough for once," scampered downstairs, calling to her mother.

"Manma! I've got a live 'tell!! Lalways wanted one and now I've lettl!! Lalways wanted one and now I've doll! I always wanted one and now I've doll! I always wanted one and now I've got it."

The baby was found and the story frankly told, but, though the beggarwoman was sought all over the town, no trace of her could be discovered. Meanwhile the baby's little "owner" begged so hard that it should be kept that the parents yielded and the living doll became a household blessing.

John Chinaman's Text.

John Chinamun's Text.

New York Tribune.

A good story is told of a Chinaman who is employed as a cook in a California family. He recently saw in a confectioner's window a huge cake on which was a motto made of frosted sugar. And knowing that his master and mixtoes were very calificate him. and mistress were very religious, being especially given to reading the Bible, he determined to give them a pleasant sur-prise by making a cake with a text from the Bible on it. He wasn't very familiar the Bible on it. He wasn't very familiar with the Bible, but be happened to have some tracts in his room which contained numerous texts, and he concluded to use one of these. So he went to work, made a most beautiful cake, and with truly Oriental patience emblazoned it with a text. But the feelings of the family may be imagined when John proudly placed his masterpiece on the table and they read on it these words, "Ye generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?" wrath to come?"

Ho! my sisters, see the banner Waving in the sky, Are you broken-down, discouraged? Courage! help is nigh.
